

A Mid-Cap Fund With Big Gains

BY NELLIE S. HUANG

The managers of DF Dent Midcap Growth (symbol DFDMX), a member of the Kiplinger 25, our favorite low-cost mutual funds, are back in the office after months of remote work. But the quarantine did not hold them back. Midcap Growth returned 13.2% over the past year—far better than the 1.6% loss in the Russell Mid Cap index. Some of the fund’s best performers over the past year were software firms, including BlackLine (up 45%) and Ansys (up 37%). Shares in financial-services firm Moody’s rose 41%.

A few holdings that lost ground were COVID casualties, in part. Insurance company Markel (down 12% over the past 12 months) suffered from its exposure to business-interruption claims filed because of the shutdown. The travel slowdown has hurt digital-commerce software provider Pros Holdings (PRO) (down 32%); the airline industry is a key customer. Despite the declines, comanager Bruce Kennedy says he has “strong confidence” in these businesses.

Kennedy and his comanagers, Matthew Dent, Gary Mitchell and Thomas O’Neil, work to find 30 to 40 growing midsize businesses that generate large amounts of cash, dominate a niche in their industry, and have talented and ethical executives. They wait for a stock to trade at the right price relative to its expected risk-adjusted return before buying. “We’re picky, and we do deep research,” Kennedy says.

At the end of 2019, the fund’s cash position rose to 5% of assets because there were “more names we wanted to sell than to buy,” Kennedy says. When stock prices collapsed, the managers deployed that cash, as well as more cash raised by trimming stakes in a few top performers, into four new stocks: Heico (HEI), a seller of aftermarket aircraft parts; veterinary diagnostics company Idexx Laboratories (IDXX); and software firms Atlassian (TEAM) and Coupa Software (COUP). Cash is now just 1% of assets.

In recent years, the fund has expanded its research bench and hired five analysts. “They’ve been instrumental in reducing the number of mistakes we make,” says Kennedy. The fund has been on a torrid run of late. Over the past three years, Midcap Growth has returned 19.0% annualized, beating the 5.3% average annual return of the Russell Mid Cap index.

Performance data quoted represents past performance and is no guarantee of future results. Current performance may be lower or higher than the performance data quoted. Investment return and principal value will fluctuate so that an investor's shares, when redeemed, may be worth more or less than original cost. Historically, some of the Fund's fees were waived or expenses reimbursed; otherwise returns would have been lower. The Investor Class Share's annual operating expense ratio (gross) is 1.13%. The Fund's adviser has contractually agreed to waive a portion of its fee and/or reimburse expenses to limit the net expense ratio of Investor Shares to 0.98% through October 31, 2020. Shares redeemed within 60 days of purchase will be charged a 2.00% redemption fee. For the most recent month-end performance, please call 866.233.3368.

Short-term performance, in particular, is not a good indication of the Fund's future performance, and an investment should not be made based solely on returns. Because of ongoing market volatility, Fund performance may be subject to substantial short-term changes.

Investing involves risks, including the possible loss of principal. The Fund invests in small and medium size companies, which carry greater risk than is customarily associated with larger, more established companies. With non-diversification risk, the Fund will typically invest in securities of fewer issuers, which exposes the Fund to greater market risk. Investing in ADRs (American Depositary Receipt) carries risks of political and financial instability, less liquidity and greater volatility, as well as risk associated with the lack of reliable accounting and financial information. The Fund is also subject to other risks, such as REIT risk with possible real estate market declines, which are detailed in the Fund's prospectus.

Before investing you should carefully consider the Fund's investment objectives, risk, charges and expenses. This and other information is in the prospectus, a copy of which may be obtained by calling 866.233.3368. Please read the prospectus carefully before you invest.
